

Vuzix to Provide Hands-Free Remote Support Incentives for Organizations Seeking to Implement Technology Solutions to Help Reduce Public Health Concerns

Vuzix technology solutions provide efficient and effective alternative to corporate travel and site visits

Vuzix now offering free one-year Smart Glasses Connector Applications for Zoom and Skype for Business and special 20% discount on Vuzix Smart Glasses to qualified educational institutions.

ROCHESTER, NY, March 10, 2020 – Vuzix® Corporation (NASDAQ: VUZI), ("Vuzix" or, the "Company"), a leading supplier of Smart Glasses and Augmented Reality (AR) technology and products, today announced that due to the current environment of travel restrictions due to global public health events and concerns, the Company has experienced a spike in inbound interest regarding remote support solutions coming from Japan and elsewhere around the world. To support companies that are responding to and operating in this crisis, Vuzix is pleased to offer a free one year smart glasses connector application for Zoom and Skype for Business to any customer that purchases a Vuzix smart glasses (M-Series or Blade Smart Glasses) during the month of March 2020.

Many major corporations have enacted internal travel restriction policies. This is coming from the executive offices at some of the biggest corporations in America including Amazon, Google, Ford Motor Company and many others:

U.S. News reported “Some companies are moving to limit employees’ travel, hoping to lessen the possibility of the coronavirus spreading through an office.” Read more here: <https://www.usnews.com/news/economy/articles/2020-03-03/twitter-amazon-google-among-businesses-guarding-against-coronavirus>

In education:

According to the United Nations, as of Tuesday (March 3, 2020), 22 countries on three continents have closed schools because of the virus. As cases of coronavirus disease continue to be identified in countries around the world, the effort to stem its spread has kept some 290 million students home from school. “Many of our global enterprise customers are faced with challenging and important decisions on the business continuity front as to how to effectively support their global operations and customers with minimal interruptions and are adopting our product’s basic ‘see what I see’ video conferencing functionality. It can reduce the cost and risk of business travel while providing quality technical support to customers worldwide. Also to facilitate “remote teaching”, teachers can stream in full HD what the teacher is seeing, from hands on lab experiments to cooking, while students are safely connected remotely over the internet,” said Paul Travers, Vuzix President and Chief Executive Officer. “We have experienced a recent uptick in inbound interest in our remote support packages and smart glasses products, most notably with several new clients in Asia and more are seeking to implement. We have chosen to offer a full year of free smart glasses licenses for two of the most widely used business video calling applications to provide our customers with a simple plug and play solution for education to enterprise around the globe.”

In order to download the one-year smart glasses connector application for Zoom and Skype, customers must register their smart glasses device(s) on the Vuzix Apps Store. The Zoom connector application can be accessed here and the connector application for Skype for Business can be accessed here. Vuzix is also offering educational institutions interested in using Zoom or Skype for Business a discount of 20% off their purchase of Vuzix Smart Glasses of choice.
