

Vuzix Receives Second Follow-on Development Commitment from a Global Aerospace Firm for a Waveguide-Based HMD System

ROCHESTER, NY, June 26, 2019 – Vuzix® Corporation (NASDAQ: VUZI), ("Vuzix" or, the "Company"), a leading supplier of Smart Glasses and Augmented Reality (AR) technology and products, announced it has received an additional follow-on development commitment from a global Tier-1 Aerospace firm to build a customized commercial avionics waveguide-based head mounted display (HMD) system.

The customized HMD development program with this customer continues to expand. The first stage of the program with this Tier-1 Aerospace firm was completed in the fourth quarter of 2018 and the second stage of this program was announced in May 2019. The most recent follow-on commitment for the third stage of this program totals approximately $400,000 and is expected to be completed before the end of 2019.

"We are very pleased with the progress we continue to make with this customer as we jointly work together on a significant production opportunity in the commercial avionics space," said Paul Travers, President and CEO of Vuzix. "OEM custom waveguide-based development and production projects such as this represent a highly profitable vehicle for leveraging our extensive optical expertise and IP and we look forward to announcing further developments with this firm and others going forward."
